Buffet Drawing Templates

Mangia has a certain way of setting up buffets to ensure efficient serving. This form outlays the general setting for a buffet. While some items will vary on each buffet the general theory remains. Use your judgment to set up the buffet onsite in accordance to the Mangia way shown here. Pizza buffets follow the same layout as shown below.

Notes:

For hot items, in chafers, the veggie items go first (closest to plates), the starch items go second, the proteins go third. We put less expensive items first. Rice would go before mac n cheese. Chicken would go before tri tip.

Veggies example - veggie mix, carrots, green beans, etc. Starch example - mac n cheese, potatoes, rice, etc. Protein example - chicken, pork, beef, etc.

For most buffets we will have three hot items, a salad, a bread, and a butter. If you have more hots or more colds set them up using the same process above. You can run chafers over into the second table as needed. If you have cold sides like potato salad, mac salad, place BEFORE the salad.

Arrange items to fill in the table. We do not want open table space. Say you only have 2 hots - set up just one buffet table (not two). Or if you must do two tables you can rotate chafers 90 degrees to fill up space.

UTENSILS

What to use:

We want to use the best utensil to efficiently serve food in a timely manner. In addition we want to be mindful of the serving size.

Check with lead:

Verify the serving utensil plan with leads for BOH to make sure you are on the same page. Use the back of this page to write the utensil plan down!

Examples:

Standard Tongs - Pulled Pork, Tri Tip, Shredded Beef, Chicken

Small Tongs - Bread, Relish, Pickles

Spatulas - Salmon, Pizza

Spoons - Mac and Cheese, Mashed Potato, Cubed Chicken

Slotted Spoons - Veggies, Black Beans, Pinto Beans

Tablespoons - BBQ Sauce, Mayo, Olives
